I Come From A Place Called Home (1882-1929) (Volume 1) Elizabeth Burr Marquard

On a final visit to her childhood home in rural Ohio, eighty-year-old Minola Seibel recalls the remarkable events that span 100 years of the Seibel family's history. The first volume covers the early years, from a young man's journey down the Mississippi River in the 1880s, to the backbreaking labor necessary for a small strawberry farm to succeed, the lingering agony of the Spanish Influenza pandemic, and a nation on the brink of the Great Depression. For the eight Seibel siblings, all choices, opportunities, and hopes for the future are complicated by one overriding shadow—their mother's mental illness. This saga, based on the true experiences of the author's ancestors, preserves the legacy of an ordinary American family who faced extraordinary challenges.
